Popular Young Couple Married July 24, At Brides Home In Tofield

The marriage of Miss Madeline Imagene Secord, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Secord, of Tofield, to Mr. Frederick Redgwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Redgwell, of Napanee, Ontario, was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, at 11:30 Monday morning, August 24, by the Rev. A. M. Tremblay, of Wetsaskiwin, and the Rev. Wm. Leveridge, of Edmonton.

Mrs. B. Ray Farquharson, of Calgary, played the wedding music. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of flesh-colored lace over silk crepe with matching turban and veil of tulle and she carried a bouquet of opheelia roses and lilies of the valley.

Little Joy Farquharson, of Calgary, groomed in pale mauve organdy and carrying pink roses was a dainty flower girl.

The fireplace banked with tall delphinium pink and white peonies and pink gladioli, formed a lovely background for the ceremony.

During the signing of the register, Miss Thelma Jobb, of Tofield, sang sweetly, "Oh Promise Me."

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served, the table being laid in lace and centred with the wedding cake and decorated with tall pink tapers in silver candle sticks.

Present at the ceremony were: Mrs. K. Secord, of Edmonton, aunt of the bride; Miss Isabel Secord, of Edmonton; Mrs. George Kettle, of Clover Bar, and Mrs. S. Ray Farquharson and daughter, of Calgary, cousins of the bride. The Misses Audrey and Thelma Jobb, of Tofield; Miss Helen McCauley, of Tofield; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Seale, of Tofield; Mrs. A. M. Tremblay, of Wetsaskiwin, and Mrs. A. McCullie, of Neilburg, Sask.

The bride is a graduate in Arts from Alberta university and has been for the past four years assistant principal of Wainwright high school.

The groom is on the staff of the Bank of Montreal, Wainwright.

Mr. and Mrs. Redgwell left immediately after the ceremony on a motor trip to Banff, the latter travelling in a smart spring color tailleur with accessories of brown.

On their return they will make their home at Wainwright—Viking their home at Wainwright—Edmonton Journal.

Sasko-Wain. Shareholders Hold Meeting

The sixth annual meeting of the Sasko-Wainwright Oil & Gas Company Ltd., was held in Saskatoon, on Saturday, July 29th, 1933 at 2:30 p.m. The President, Mr. J. C. McLeod, of Wainwright, on calling the meeting to order expressed his very great pleasure in seeing such a very large attendance of shareholders present and only wished that every shareholder in the Company were there. He then called on Mr. George H. Cruise, K.C., to come forward and take the chair.

It was the largest attendance of any Annual meeting yet held, all the Directors were present. After some very contentious matters were discussed and passed on, the election of Directors was taken up. Those on the present Directorate who were nominated for re-election were G. C. Shier, Colonsey, Sask., Archie Robertson, Perdue, Sask., C. J. Nelson, Raddison, Sask., J. G. Merion, Wainwright, Alta. ### U.F.A. Convention Successful Affair

(By Mrs. M. Pawling)

The Wainwright provincial constituency association convention held here July 31st, opened their meeting with Mr. Love giving his report of the year's work in legislature, explaining how much the different resources from gasoline, liquor, natural resources and income tax were all much less than in normal years and amusement had to carry on with some uncontrollable expenses, as interest on public debt, etc., and other controllable expenses as education, public health, roads, etc., and all were being cut as much as possible, while of course, relief expenses increased tremendously. In 1930 they were spending over 12 million dollars, but this year it was cut to 7,000,000. The last year Federal government administered natural resources, the expense of the Alberta administration was some $1,700,000; last year it was administered for $448,000. Alberta has borrowed less than Manitoba or Saskatchewan.

This last session legislation was enacted ensuring security for the man on the land, in that it is now necessary for the creditor to go to the Debt Adjustment Board and prove the debtor is able to pay. The Government felt that wiser than proclaiming a moratorium which would affect disastrously the credit of the Provincial government is unable to provide debts as all monetary laws are under control of the Dominion.

One of the great problems confronting the Government today is the telephone question because so many farmers are giving up their phones, and there is thus a very much reduced income. He intimated the government was adopting a policy where by different localities could take over their phones locally.

During the afternoon session Mr. Spencer gave a report on the C.C.F. Convention in Regina. He began by explaining that the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation was not a new party, but a federation of existing bodies. He commented with pleasure on the city of Regina. The representation was on the basis of federal representation and resulted in 131 delegates from all the provinces, save the Maritimes.

Mr. Spencer then read the Manifesto of the C.C.F. part by part, commenting on each clause, as endorsed by the federation officers for the Wainwright constituency elected as follows: President, Mr. Foreman, vice-president, Hugh Lacey, Directors, A. Armon, Jr., Geo. Leggett, R. C. Lees, Fred Ford, Harry Jackson, M. T. Knutsen.

Mr. Brownlee, speaking at the afternoon session, thought a while ago the worst years were past but now is looking forward to hardest year, as last crop estimate is lowest for years. Thus administration work would be more difficult than ever.

The four sources of money for running the Province are taxation, borrowing from banks, sale of bonds, and the Dominion Government. Latterly these have been almost reduced to three and bonds have not been sold to such an extent, thus some roads, for instance, have not been undertaken.

Fortunately the Government has been able to pay the banks all owing them and has been able to float a loan at a lower rate than either Sask. or Manitoba.

He pointed out to the U.F.A. locals the great opportunity and responsibility of studying questions of today, notably finance and financial reform. Also another important object is the larger area of municipalities so they may function more effectively in the matter of public health, school, roads, etc.

Several resolutions were discussed regarding wages in municipalities, minimum wage of teachers, group representation, highways, homestead, cooperative enterprises, education.

A lengthy discussion took place wherein opinions were given for and against in every case, questions being asked and much information given.

This concluded the afternoon session.

In the evening at the Elite Theatre a meeting was held where Mr. Brownlee voiced that one great difficulty of our Provincial administration now is to get people to differentiate between the functions, whether Provincial or Federal, of the different governments.

For instance, any monetary policy as the Douglas scheme is beyond provincial control, finance is a federal matter. Various affairs are entirely under federal control such as trade and commerce, banking, issuing of currency and legal tender. Any provincial effort of a cleaning house, etc., would have to be entirely voluntary, which would not be efficacious. Nine different currencies in Canada is not the goal but one Dominion-wide.

Also if one province started to hand out credit and others not doing that, what would happen in view of the fact that the provinces cannot control immigration?

First duty of Provincial legislation is not to be harsh on taxpayers, but to administer wisely the affairs of the Government.

Is Alberta doing as well as other provinces. How has it affected the taxpayer. General public pay two taxes more than in 1921, gasoline and income.

Alberta is the lowest taxed province west of the Great Lakes.

Conditions are worse in some respects for the coming year than before because of drought in many areas. Alberta is better able to face the situation than before because of the sound position she has kept herself in.

Unemployment not solved entirely but as well as in other provinces.

Public health is to be one of the leading operations to which Alberta government will turn.

Arrears of taxes is a difficult question but so handled that only one farmer has been driven off his farm by inability to pay taxes.

Mr. Brownlee advised people to study wrongs in economic and social systems and try to rectify them.

Games were played during the evening Hazel Stuart and Mr. H. Jackson won prizes for the pool games.

A delicious luncheon was served later in the evening.

It was first planned to take her to Edmonton, but as she grew worse during the early morning it was decided that an operation was imperative.

She leaves to mourn her loss her father and mother and four brothers and sisters.

The funeral will take place from McLeod's Undertaking Parlors.

BELINDA ELIZABETH BLAIR

Mrs. Belinda Elizabeth Blair, of Edgerton, passed away at the hospital on Tuesday morning, August 1st, at the age of 60 years.

Interment will take place at Ribstone. McLeod's Parlors are handling all arrangements.

Mr. McDougall Suffers Painful Injuries Thurs.

A painful accident occurred on Thursday, July 27th, when Mr. Thos. McDougall had the misfortune to be bled by a cow. It seems that Mr. McDougall was walking beside his team leading the cow which turned on him. He was knocked under the horses and the wagon passed over him, injuring him severely enough that he is unable to get around. A speedy recovery is wished by all.

C. G. I. T. Camp Held at Salt Lake July 13-25 Truly Enjoyed By All

The district C.G.I.T. Camp sponsored by the Girls Work Board of Alberta was held at Salt Lake July 13-25. There were fifteen girls in attendance from Aurburndale, Ribstone, Hope Valley and Edgerton. The staff consisted of Miss Thelma Kingsbury, directress, Miss Elisabeth Forryah, and Miss Muriel Wittmann, assistants. Miss Edmund Evans, nurse, Mrs. Will Roach, camp mother, and Mrs. Ed. Ganderton, cook. The Girls Council elected Agnes Cleland its president, Agnes Eyhen, secretary, Lois Arthur editor, Ruth Phillips, assistant editor, Margaret Redmond, librarian.

The camp was divided into two groups, the Sky Pilots, the Goly-Wogs and the Cheery Chums. Each of these groups devoted an hour each morning to the study of the Life of Jesus. There were also three interest groups who met each afternoon for the study of Vocations, Dramatics and Story-Telling, respectively.

Wednesday evening the directors followed by each group and its leader marched slowly to the Ceremonial Ring singing "Follow the Glean." There an impressive initiation ceremony took place.

Thursday evening, was a stent night when each Bible Group presented a humorous program. This concert was well attended by the other campers up the beach.

On Friday the girls hiked to the other side of the lake into Saskatchewan, where they had a wicker supper. After their return to camp a Star Talk was given.

On Saturday evening each interest group presented a sample of the work it had been doing. This program was of a more serious nature.

Sunday morning an outdoor church service was held, in which several of the girls took part. A most interesting review of the book "The Sign of the Cross" was given by Muriel Wittmann. Two very fine numbers were rendered by the choir. Sunday evening each dramatic group dramatized a Bible story and some Negro Spirituals were sung.

Monday was International Day. Program of land and water sports took up the afternoon and in the evening after Vespers the closing ceremony.

was held Tuesday noon marked the closing of a very successful and enjoyable camp week.

A. Y. P. A. Hold Swimming Party At Mott Lake

Tuesday evening July 25th, at 7:30 p.m., the members of the A.Y.P.A. and their friends met at the McLeod furniture store and from there motored to Mott Lake for a swimming party. Immediately upon arrival at the lake, bathing suits were donned—and then the fun began!

A greased pole provided thrills and tumblers and almost everyone tried to walk to the end, few succeeding. One member of the party apparently thought it was a horse but couldn't even stick on it that way. After some time spent in the water the party entered into some lively games to get warmed up.

Lunch was then partaken of and it was a happy group that voted the evening a success as they journeyed home.

Mr. A. Routier received word last week of the death of his sister, who had been confined in a sanatorium for the past few months. Sympathies are extended to Mr. Routier.

AN INDISPENSABLE INSTITUTION

The world court that was established as an auxiliary of the League of Nations is making itself increasingly useful and so to the Bank of International Settlements that was created by the league to facilitate German reparation payments. In more ways than could be enumerated in a short article the league is proving itself of value to world society.

For twelve years the league has been engaged in a war upon the noxious drug traffic which has been carried on through a world-wide organization. The opium convention has received more ratification than any other instrument prepared by the league. Thirty-eight nations now adhere to it. As one authority has said, "The convention provides the only known example of a planned world economy for a whole economic process, from raw material to ultimate consumption of the finished article, worked out in full detail by a world conference and incorporated as a binding obligation in an international convention."

The effect of these measures is shown in the reduction in the manufacture of the three principal drugs in the year 1931. The total production of morphine for all purposes, as reported, was 30 1/2 tons as compared with 36 tons in 1930 and 37 tons in 1929; heroin, 1.3 tons as compared with 4 tons in 1930; cocaine, 4.8 as compared with 5.8 tons in 1930. In 1931 the quantities of morphine and heroin reported as consumed actually exceeded the quantities reported as manufactured.

Those who are engaged in the illicit drug traffic are very ingenious and persistent. They have been routed in western Europe, once the centre of their operations, but show a disposition to establish themselves in south-eastern Europe and Asia, where control measures are not efficient. Some illicit factories already have been located and suppressed. On the whole the opium campaign has been surprisingly successful and Geneva is wondering whether an organization of similar character might not be set up with advantage to control the traffic in arms and war material.

Critics of the league should remember that no individual or institution is 100 per cent efficient. The league was created in the most difficult period in history to perform a task of unparalleled magnitude and delicacy and, being dependers on human nature and on the governments, often antagonistic to one another, whose agent it is, has met with numerous setbacks. Notwithstanding these it already has become an indispensable institution in the life of the world and the chief hope of better days for humanity as a whole.

AFTER THE CONFERENCE

It looks as though the conference which adjourned Thursday may possibly be considered as having been a conference to end conferences. None of the participants, apparently, had very much to say about it, although one of the U.S. delegates, Mr. Cox, thought it had produced worth while results and President Roosevelt in an unexpected message declared that it had brought about a better understanding by the participating nations of their own problems and the difficulties of others. So perhaps, a note of qualified optimism might be struck. But it seems reasonable to suggest that the nations really need not have gone to the expense of spending six hot weeks in London since they could probably have got exactly the same information by reading the reports of their own consuls and trade commissioners. The conference has admittedly only adjourned and some sort of temporary machinery has to be kept in force to revive it, if as and conditions warrant.

In the meantime what Canadians principally are interested in is what Mr. Bennett proposes to do in order to improve internal conditions. He has gone to a well-known Yorkshire watering place for a rest, and no Canadian will begrudge him a holiday. If any public man has worked himself to the limit in fulfilling his own ideas of the obligations of office, Mr. Bennett is that man. So it may be hoped that revived by the waters of Harrogate, he will come home to initiate a policy which will give Canada a chance to stage a recovery comparable to that which is being witnessed in Great Britain, Australia and the United States. Canada will expect this fall something more than a policy of drift.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE WAINWRIGHT STAR

What Would You Do?

Copied from the "Green The Tree" column of the Toronto Star:
"Would you see a friend eat a big fat potato bug and not do anything about it? We know a girl who sat at a luncheon party the other day and saw a friend sitting at a table across from her, eat a piece of lettuce off, wrap it neatly around a big potato bug (which was crawling under the lettuce) and eat it with apparent relish. The girl who knew the potato bug was not a friend of hers, but she was not a friend of hers either. She was just another piece of scenery; the other guests, not knowing anything about it, calmly ate their salads; and the girl who saw was the only one who really suffered, because she simply couldn't go for her's. What would you have done?"—The Canadian Echo, Warton, Ontario.

BEE QUEEN BREEDING

One of the most useful things that a bee keeper can have in the apiary during the active season is a supply of young mated queens on which he can draw to replace what queens are missing, have failed or are likely to fail. To have such a supply constantly on hand, some bee keepers prefer to purchase the queens from a commercial queen-breeder, while others would rather rear what they require themselves. In Ottawa the practice has been for a number of years past to begin queen rearing about the middle of June in order to have young mated queens for the first week in July. Prior to this time what queens are required are drawn from the double colonies of the "Two Queen System." This very fine method is too long to explain here, but full details will be found in the report of the Dominion Apiarist for 1930, also most useful information in the publications "Wintering Bees in Canada," and "Package Bees," all of which may be obtained free from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture Ottawa.

Latest French Model Stop Dole Method Urges Henry Ford"Well, sweet and lovely, I think I'm going to get my chance," Eddie announced one evening."You mean manager of the plant?" Lida asked eagerly.Eddie nodded. "The boss called me into his office today and we had quite a talk. It ended up with his inviting you and me to dinner tomorrow night. His wife will be there, too.
This job means meeting people socially and I suppose he wants her to look us over and help him decide what sort of folks we are. You'll make a hit with him, though. I know that."Lida frowned. "Doesn't sound so good. And what shall I wear?" She went to the clothes closet and critically inspected her few dresses."Perhaps you'd better buy a new one," Eddie advised."If we cut cream in our coffee for a while I can manage to get an inexpensive one," Lida figured."Don't wear yourself out shopping," warned Eddie, as he kissed her goodbye the next morning. "You want to be fresh and rested tonight."In the first shop she went into Lida found the very hat she wanted.
It was soft and black and very chic.
"This is a copy of one of the latest French models," the saleslady told her. "It will make any costume smart."Lida was even more delighted with it when she got home and tried it on with her dress. It had the appearance of a $20 hat—not even Mrs. Burgess would look any smarter than she. The right hat made all the difference in the world.She rested during the afternoon and when she dressed for the evening Eddie was enthusiastic. "You look like a million dollars," he exclaimed.
"You'll clinch the job for me!"Lida was excited, but self-confidence as they stepped into the lobby of the hotel."Here he is," Eddie whispered as a white-haired gentleman approached them. "Just be yourself and everything'll be all right."Lida saw immediately when she was introduced that she had made a good first impression."Mrs. Burgess is waiting right over here," he said, guiding them toward an impressive-looking dowager.

Lida took one glance and her heart nearly stopped beating. She wished desperately that she were at the other end of the earth, that she might suddenly faint and be carried away—that anything would happen to keep her from meeting Mrs. Burgess. For the boss's wife wore a black hat exactly like hers! There was only one difference—it was one of the expensive originals from which Lida's had been copied.All the gracious, easy phrases she had prepared died on her lips. Red with embarrassment, she weakly acknowledged the introduction, barely looking at Mrs. Burgess, who bowed politely. Everyone in the hotel lobby, she felt, must be looking and smiling at their two hats. Lida sat mute at dinner, dabbling at her food.Once or twice she caught Eddie's eye on her, puzzled. He wouldn't have noticed what was wrong, Lida thought angrily. Neither had Mr.

Burgess—he tried to be jolly and draw her into the discussion. Men how blind and stupid they were!After what seemed hours of agony to Lida, Mr. and Mrs. Burgess finally bade the young Somers good-night.
Mrs. Burgess was formal and distant."What in the world was the matter with you?" Eddie demanded on the way home. "I've never seen you like that before—like a schoolgirl afraid to open her mouth. And Mrs. Burgess really tried to be nice!""Of course you didn't realize," flared Lida. "You wouldn't. Didn't you see she had on a hat exactly like mine—except that mine was a $1.88 copy.""Well, I did notice they were something alike, but I can't see why that would spoil—""Don't talk about it," Lida interrupted vehemently. "There's no use.
You wouldn't understand, at least not until Burgess gives the job to someone else."By the time she reached home she was in tears. Eddie attempted in vain to comfort her. "Don't you see," she sobbed. "I've ruined your career.
You may never get another opportunity like that." Angerily she threw off the offending toque, which she had donned with such pride a few hours before.The next evening Eddie rushed in to the house. "I got the job, darling," he shouted jubilantly.

Lida was incredulous.

"And it was your hat that turned the trick," he grinned. "Burgess said Mrs. Burgess told him he couldn't go wrong with a fellow whose wife had such clever taste in hats!"

WEEK BY WEEK NEWS ITEMS

Toronto, Ont., July 25—Like many another confidence game, the Spanish prisoner "rag" has cropped up again but this time in a new form.In spite of hard times the imprisoned Spaniard has gone high hat and now requests his intended victims to cable him cash instead of remitting through the slower channels of the mails.Canadian National Telegraphs have issued a general circular from headquarters here over the signature of D. E. Galloway, assistant vice-president, in which officers and clerks are requested to use every precaution to protect the public from possible fraud practiced through the means of the Spanish prisoner game.During the past few weeks the Canadian National Telegraphs have received many a message destined for the incarcerated gentleman who promises vast reward to the person putting up sufficient money to free him. The circular points out that while the company must accept such cables should the sender insist, its officers and clerks should warn their patrons against forwarding sum of money to unknown writers particularly those supposedly languishing in Spanish jails.NOTICE TO CREDITORS AND CLAIMANTSIn the Estate of Henri Sabourin, late of Heath in the Province of Al-persons having claims upon the estate of the above named Henri Sabourin

A.D. 1933, are required to file with of the estate of the said deceased, by the 9th day of September A.D. 1933, a full statement duly verified of their claims and of any securities held by them, and that after that date the Administrator will distribute the assets of the deceased among the parties entitled thereto having regard only to the claims of which notice has been so filed or which have been brought to his knowledge.J. A. MACKENZIE,

Urges Henry Ford

Detroit: The shortest cut to the restoration of economic balance Henry Ford said in an interview recently is the elimination of the dole system, and one of the quickest ways for the United States to eliminate the dole, he added, is to get rid of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.Recovery Mr. Ford said, can come only up through the people, not down through financial or political schemes. We must put work everywhere—not the kind of work that pays a dole, but a wage with a margin.Mr. Ford said he was working on a plan that in effect would mean sending work and wages direct to the people.I am working out a plan, he said whereby every Ford dealer will have a part in Ford manufacture. There is no reason why every one of our 9,000 dealerships should only sell and service cars. We could make it possible for them to hire men to work on small parts. This would be sending work and wages direct to the people of every community.Regarding the payment of war debts Mr. Ford said neither collection nor cancellation was of any consequence, so far as the plain people of the nations are concerned.The people of neither the creditor nor debtor nations will get any real benefit either way, he said. The Great War was paid for, directly paid for, in cash and in every other way, long ago. Every shot fired in the war was paid for. The debts are velvet, they are the last rake off. If we don't forget them our children will.

Of recognition of Russia Mr. Ford

Stop "Kickin' "

Now there ain't no use to worry and there ain't no use to fret 'Cause the things you've been expectin' haven't happened yet.There's no use to be complainin' and be always in a stew 'Cause then their feller's gettin' what you think belongs to you.Why life's things is distributed in the funny way they is is away past my explainin' and it's really not my business.For the one who distributes them, they say is mighty wise.
And knows just what he's doin' tho' he does live in the skies.So 'twill be a darn site better not to grumble and complain 'Cause we wanted pleasant weather and instead we got the rain.Rain was needed by some feller fur his crops and fur his hay, They'd dried up and he'd been busted if we'd had our bloom in' way.A much better plan is this one—be contented all the while—Work your darndest while you're workin'—always have a happy smile.You'll be gettin' all you're wantin', if you want it hard enuff.
Other ways of livin' is lonesome—and the road is mighty ruff.

THE UNPROFITABLE

BOARDER IN THE

POULTRY FLOCK

(Experimental Farms Note)

The unprofitable boarder in the poultry flock is a liability that should be wiped out at the earliest possible moment, and though the trap-net is the most reliable indication of a poor producer, there are certain visible characters that readily distinguish the poor layer at this season of the year.Providing the condition has no been brought about by injudicious feeding, a depilating mite, or a nutritional deficiency in the ration, a bird that goes into an early moult is generally an unprofitable bird. The persistently broody hen and the bird that is hard to "break up" is using feed that should be going to a good growing pullet that should take her place in the flock. If she is overlooked she may become a menace and transmit the undesirable broody factor to her off-spring. The bird with the hard, heavy abdomen and thick, hard fat covering the public bones at the sides of the vent, excessive yellow pigmentation in legs and beak, and with dry, scaly combs is a poor producer if these characters are in evidence at this season of the year when a good hen should be "bleached out" in leg and beak, carry a full, waxy, bright red comb, a bright alert eye, soft pliable skin over the abdomen, a large moist vent, and good spread between the public or "lay" bones. At this season the novice will seldom err if the flock is handled and carefully culled by these elementary and simple characters.To ensure a more reliable selection a closer study should be made of other outward and visible characters possessed by both high and low producers in addition to those mentioned and, if a definite record of both production and egg size is desired, the trap-net is essential.expressed the belief such action, too, was of minor consequence. Russia, he said, seems to have been progressing very nicely without recognition by the United States.He referred to the Rooseveltian industrial recovery act as an experiment, the value of which remains to be proved.Mr. Ford reiterated his belief that nobody, every got anything for nothing. This, he said included those who speculated in the stock market.Those who speculated in the market he said, worked harder than anybody else—and got nothing for it.The interview was given on the occasion of the thirtieth birthday anniversary of the Ford Motor Company.
The observance included a demonstration of all the different models of motor cars ever produced by Mr. Ford and the Ford Motor Co., including the one originally assembled in a brick barn back of his home in Detroit in 1903.

Special Review of

Edmonton Market

Cattle offerings were more liberal with quite a number of grass offerings in evidence. Trading on dry feds was brisk; the lighter and experiencing particularly keen demand and values were strong to 25c higher in spots. Fancy fed calves of baby beef light weight butcher steers up to $4.50 and best light heifers $4.25. A few fancy butcher steers weighing around 11000 sold on Tuesday at $4.50, but extreme top on steers from 1200 up appeared to be $4.50, while the bulk of good to choice kinds of this weight sold $3.50 at 4.Grass cattle are still very indifferent sellers, plain and rough heavy kinds being decidedly undesirable.
While the best of these offerings are hard to clear from $3 to a shade higher, plain to medium steers and heifers are generally selling from $1.50 at $2.50.Stock and feeder trade was not showing much action due to bulk of the offerings being of plain quality Good to choice stocker steers and heifers are in demand from $2.50 at $3.00.Calf market very slow and draggy demand being lacking.Hog market lower. Few loads of long-haul northern hogs being sold at $5.25 at 5.30 fed and watered.Sheep and lamb market dull. No choice lambs on offer.
